Remembering their sacrifice

NEVER FORGET: a wreath laid at Woolwich Town Hall by Greenwich mayor Jim Gillman (inset)

by Dan Stephens

LOCAL residents and Greenwich Council came together at Woolwich Town Hall on November 11 to commemorate Armistice Day. A two-minute silence was observed at 11am as part of a series of events marking Remembrance Weekend across the borough in memory of those who have served and lost their lives in past conflicts. Greenwich mayor Jim Gillman read from Exhortation, a powerful verse often recited at remembrance services.

PM praises peninsula's 'digital hub'

PRIME Minister David Cameron has praised the 'digital hub' set up in partnership by Greenwich Council and an international technology firm.

The Prime Minister used a key address to highlight the new digital innovation project on Greenwich Peninsula last Thursday.

American technology giant Cisco Systems sealed a multi-million pound deal with Greenwich Council and Ravensbourne last month.

Together they've created a digital innovation project based at Digital Enterprise Greenwich, the council-owned centre close to The O2 and Ravensbourne digital design college. The centre is playing host to the first digital hub in London which will be part of a national network supporting businesses with cutting edge technologies and IT through higher education establishments and science parks.

Cisco is investing heavily in technology and IT at a number of the hubs across the country to make it easier for start-up businesses to communicate electronically and share data with each other. Start-up businesses, like those based at Digital Enterprise Greenwich, will be able to visit the centres and connect to other organisations in the network, to share resources, pool ideas and develop business partnerships to help them innovate and grow.

Together the hubs form the 'National Virtual Incubator' and Cisco officially launched the new NVI last Thursday along with Greenwich Council and other founding partners.

In my opinion

The joys of being a tenant rep...

GREENWICH has a long history of active tenants who have worked for the good of other tenants and the borough. We have over 30 tenants associations in the borough, some of which have been successfully running for more than 50 years. Alongside this the council has a track record of supporting tenants through locally organised groups and panel meetings. I first got involved as a tenant rep more than 20 years ago because I was concerned about the environment. There is an environment watchers scheme in place now, run by the council, which you can join to feedback issues in your area. You can even send in photos from your mobile phone to report any areas which need attending to (visit www.greenwich.gov.uk/environment). I take part in this scheme now, but long before it was running I regularly went out checking on cleaning standards with caretaking supervisors. I've always been passionate about caring for our environment - we live in a fantastic borough and need to keep it that way!

I soon felt I would like to get more involved on a larger scale and did a one-year course at Lewisham College studying tenant participation and neighbourhood renewal. The course gave me the history behind council housing, how it is managed and how it can be improved through regeneration schemes. Over the years I have felt able to influence council services. This has included speaking up to make sure repairs and improvements are carried out in a green and environmentally friendly way wherever possible. I've even been involved in writing the repairs handbook and amending the tenancy agreement. At present I am chair of the Peninsula & Blackheath Westcombe housing panel, a member of the Diversity Revue Board and also on the Borough Wide Housing Panel. I really enjoy the work I do and encourage others to get involved. Call the Community Participation & Diversity Team on 020 8921 5558 or email community-participation@greenwich.gov.uk

PM praises 'digital hub'

The Prime Minister praised the NVI scheme as a significant example in driving new economic growth through high-tech innovation. Greenwich Council leader Chris Roberts said: "This is great news for Digital Enterprise Greenwich and Ravensbourne. It's a further big pull for digital businesses to locate to Greenwich

Peninsula and cements its growing reputation as one of London's leading technology centres, with the site bringing together cutting-edge businesses and the state-of-the-art Ravensbourne facility. This deal sees a real landmark in the vision for the Peninsula, the new digital community is growing all the time and this reinforces our aspirations to become an internationally respected digital cluster. Attracting an international investor of this calibre is great for the Peninsula and the borough as a whole as investment like this further bolsters the ongoing major regeneration programme we have here in Greenwich". Heritage money to restore garrison church

by Dick Townsend-Smith

ST GEORGE'S Garrison Church in Woolwich, which lost its roof in a Second World War bombing raid, has been given nearly £400,000 so it can be restored to its former glory.

The money has come from the Heritage Lottery Fund, which has awarded a £396,000 grant for repairs that will take two years to complete.

The church was built in the 1860s to serve the Royal Artillery Barracks. It was used for regular Sunday church parades with military bands and hundreds of uniformed soldiers. Severely damaged in 1944 by a V2 flying bomb and left as a roofless shell, it is still used for open-air services, with its remains preserved as a memorial garden.

The Grade II listed building, which also contains monuments to battles and servicemen killed in action, was one of the buildings included on English Heritage's "at-risk" register.

Among the surviving features are mosaics, as well as marble tablets listing the names of fallen gunners who received the Victoria Cross.

Culture Minister Ed Vaizey said St George's had been "a poignant and silent victim of World War Two for more than 60 years". He said he was delighted a scheme had been devised "to conserve the magnificent mosaics and create a garden which can be used by the local community."

The money will see up to 20 students work alongside newly-appointed mural conservators under the Heritage of London

Key to the conservation works will be a new tensile roof structure to be erected above the building to conserve its precious mosaic interior from the elements. A programme of educational activities and open days for the local community and school groups will be drawn up.

Wesley Kerr, chairman of the Heritage Lottery Fund for London, said: "The magnificent St George's Garrison Church, with its richly evocative mosaics, has survived Second World War bombing and decades of exposure to the weather, but remains a poignant and fantastically inspiring space, which until now few have been able to visit."

Cllr John Fahy, Greenwich Council's cabinet member for culture and the Olympics, said: "The Royal Artillery is inseparable from the history of Woolwich and now everybody will be able to visit this incredible space."

Respectful silence

Armistice Day marked across the borough

by Dick Townsend-Smith

PUPILS from Foxfield Primary School bowed their heads for the two-minute Armistice Day silence when they visited the Firepower museum in Woolwich on Friday.

A wreath made by the Plumstead school was laid by 10-year-old Shanay Gordon. She told GT: "It felt good because we were remembering people who had lost their lives to help others."

Sixty children from the school in Sandbach Place were touring the Royal Artillery museum, saw artefacts from different wars, and talked to Jason Mortimore who was dressed in the uniform of a First World War sergeant from the Royal Artillery.

They heard Rupert Brooke's poignant poem 'The Soldier' read by museum education officer Steve Hookins who organised their visit. He explained how the Great War began, told them about the tomb of the Unknown Warrior, and showed them a modern-day photo of the Somme – site of one of the war's bloodiest battles and now carpeted in red poppies.

The pupils also spent time making Christmas cards, which will be sent to Royal Artillery soldiers now serving in Afghanistan. Bukky Adeagbo-Balley, 11, said: "On my card I'm writing 'Merry Christmas and I hope you can come home to see your family soon'."

The children also met currently-serving Royal Artillery soldiers, and said they felt moved by their visit. Guled Suleman, 10, said: "It's all about people who fought for us, and I'm grateful to them." Javarny Ashley, 10, said "I would like to thank the soldiers who went to war for us."

Essa Bah, 11, said: "We are here to remember the people who saved us."

Cllr Jim Gillman, the Mayor of Greenwich, and his wife Cllr Janet Gillman joined the children after attending the grow old, Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn, At the going down of the sun and in the morning, We shall remember them, We shall remember them.

A solitary bugler performed a poignant rendition of Last Post before the silence was upheld. The mayor laid a wreath at the memorial in the Wellington Street hall and local faith leaders recited prayers.

Mayor Gillman said: "It's very important that we take the time to reflect and remember all those who gave their lives in the causes of peace and freedom, as well as to recall the sacrifices made by civilians on the home-front during wartime."

"Greenwich has a strong historic tie with the military life of the nation and local people have played a crucial role in the struggle for peace."

WW2 veteran Tom, who served in Burma and took part in the Normandy landings, was to salute with the mayor at Eltham's Remembrance Day service on Sunday. He has been selling poppies on Eltham High Street for more than 50 years.

Poppies appeal

YOUNG British Muslims from Greenwich helped to raise £1,000 towards the British Legion's Poppy Appeal with a bucket collection last month.

Young people from the local branch of the South East London Ahmadiyya Muslim Youth Association took part in the collection over two days last month.

The group, were among muslim youths who collected money across the country raising £12,500 nationally. Mubarak Shams, president of the association which has more than 40 members, said: "We are again delighted and proud to support the Poppy Appeal which provides financial, social and emotional support to millions who have served or who are currently serving in the British Armed Forces, and their dependents."

Please end these illegal sales

AT this moment there are six cars 'For Sale' in Lakedale Road. All these cars have registration plates and telephone numbers displayed in the windows so it would be very easy for the council to contact the traders. We residents do not understand why the council do not prosecute these traders or at least confiscate their cars. This illegal trading has been going on for some time now. The council has been made aware but we feel that instead of just asking the dealers to politely "move" their cars the council should take decisive action.

The cars are just "moved" into the next street and then returned to Lakedale Road, which is supposed to be a residential street in a conservation area, but we feel that we are living on a second-hand car yard. This illegal street trading has truly made this road look and feel very run down and rather sleazy. It is not very nice to walk up the street and witness groups of men surrounding cars and "bartering". Even in the night time we have seen this occur - then the men usually bring powerful torches to "inspect" the cars. We are very aware that should we ever need to sell our properties they will undoubtedly lose value due to this active illegal street trading which is obvious to everyone.

Name and address supplied

● WE recognise this can be a serious problem in certain areas and the street trading team regularly monitors various streets where there has been a history of cars displayed for sale. Where vehicles are found displayed for sale the owners are contacted and told to remove the vehicle or it will be impounded. This is a difficult offence to prosecute because of the requirement to identify the vehicle owner; often the vehicle is not registered and the mobile telephone owner cannot be traced. Generally a sticker is glued to the screen of vehicles that are found for sale. Where persistent sellers are identified, the vehicles are removed and formal enforcement action taken which could result in prosecution and/or destruction of the vehicle. Permanent roadside signs are placed in hotspot areas to alert sellers of the offence and to warn them that the vehicle is liable to removal. The street trading team has taken action to deal with the problem in Lakedale Road and records show that the road had been a hotspot for this activity until 2009. Street trading officers found four vehicles for sale at the Plumstead Common end of Lakedale Road during a recent visit. Two were removed straight away and the other two the following day. Lakedale Road has now again been added to the list of streets to be regularly monitored. If you have problems with cars for sale on the roadside please contact the street trading team on 020 8921 5835.

Parking not so fine for cinema-goers

DUE to the pictures being abolished in Lewisham Borough, me and my trusty wife Hazel crossed the border into Greenwich last Thursday to see the latest Woody Allen film at Greenwich Picture House. Cracking cinema, by the way, free tea for pensioners on Thursdays, not a mention of "movies" anywhere. But there's a but. In the public car park behind the pictures, they wanted to charge us £2.50 per hour to leave our motor with them. It worked out more expensive to park than go to the pictures at GPH, which costs an enticing £5 for vintage citizens on Thursdays.

Fortunately we had an alternative plan which involves parking free and which we'll keep to ourselves, if that's all the same to you. Anyway, that's beside the point. I'm disgruntled. What's it all about, Greenwich?

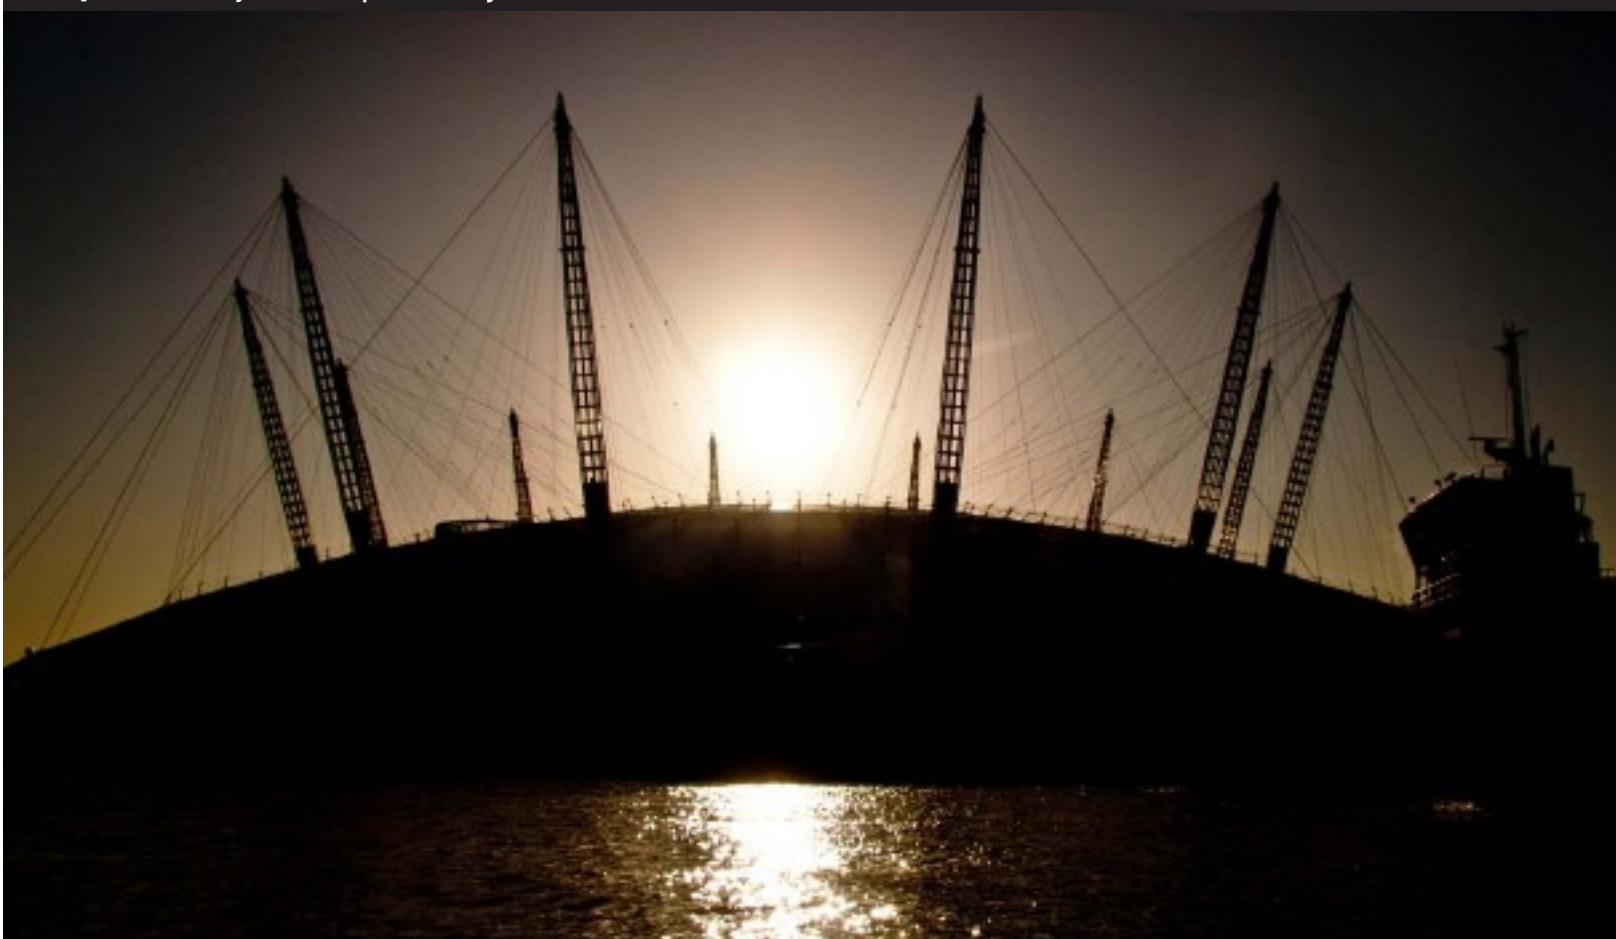

John Simpson, Grove Park

● PARKING charges have been frozen for two consecutive years and regrettably increases have been necessary. However, our prices are reasonable compared to many other boroughs. Greenwich town centre is well served by a range of public transport options, which are of course free to pensioners.

It's outstanding

Greenwich schools get top marks

by Dick Townsend-Smith

THREE Greenwich schools are celebrating the news that Ofsted rated them as outstanding.

It follows inspections carried out in October at St Mary's Catholic Primary in Eltham, Sherington Primary in Charlton, and Woolwich Polytechnic in Thamesmead.

Inspectors talked of "many examples of exemplary practice" at St Mary's Catholic Primary School in Glenure Road where "pupils are making good progress in their learning, leading to very high attainment and outstanding achievement".

The report praised the pupils' contribution to the community by supporting charities and being actively involved in the local parish and said that "staff are wholeheartedly behind the headteacher in her quest to provide the best possible learning environment for the pupils."

Headteacher Maureen Jackson said: "I would like to thank governors, staff, parents and pupils for working so well together. St Mary's is an excellent school and we should all be proud to work in such a special place."

The 470-pupil school also provides after-school clubs such as Irish dancing and Taekwondo, and Gaelic Football.

Sherington Primary in Wyndcliff Road, Charlton, was also rated by Ofsted as outstanding, particularly for the fact that all pupils had the chance opportunities to

We are delighted that Ofsted have recognised that we are outstanding." Parent governors chair Ben Hillier, himself a former pupil, added: "I'm really delighted the school has done so well. It has steadily got better and better."

Year 5 pupil Eni Ogunfemi said: "It's a great place for children who want to learn."

Woolwich Polytechnic in Hutchins Road, Thamesmead, received top marks from Ofsted, which praised its "extremely positive approach to learning which underpins the excellent progress made by all groups, its extremely effective promotion of equality of respect and opportunity, and the behaviour characterised by confident good manners and a well-embedded respect for rules."

Headteachers Tim Plumb and Byron Parker were delighted by the grading. Tim said: "This means that the Poly provides an education that can compare to the very best schools in the country. We are once again well above the national averages. In 2010 we were the most improved boys' school in the country and in 2011 our exam results were even better."

Pupils lauded the school's after-school clubs such as dancing and kite flying.

"The quality of assistance given to us by members of staff is truly outstanding and they respond to our views and needs to make Woolwich Poly an enjoyable place to learn and grow," said Kayode-Sampson Babatunde-Ige, from Year 11.

And Amritpal Samra from Year 13 added: "This school has given us outstanding opportunities but more importantly it has given me the chance to embark on my journey to Cambridge University."

Cllr Jackie Smith, the council's member for children and young people, said: "We work very hard with all our schools in Greenwich to help them offer the very best for their pupils. The three that are rated here as outstanding deserve praise."

£5 deals at Blackheath shops

TRADERS up at Blackheath Standard are offering a range of special deals worth a fiver to encourage people who shop locally. There are free gifts worth £5 and discounts of £5 off goods and services at shops in the area until November 19. The fiver deals are among several initiatives designed to get people to support shops in the parade. Joy Neal from the Blackheath Cooks, the cookery school and retailer in Old Dover Road, said: "We're hoping this will encourage people to buy more locally and draw attention to the many services and products on offer locally."

Shooting range right on target

Woolwich Olympic venue nears completion

WORK is well on target for the 2012 Olympics indoor shooting ranges at the Royal Artillery Barracks in Woolwich.

Woolwich hosts the shooting and Paralympic archery events, as well as the Paralympic archery competition at the Games next summer. The venue will have three indoor ranges and three open-air ranges on Woolwich Common. Work is on track to be completed in December ahead of the international shooting test events in the spring.

The indoor courses are almost complete, using around 1,200 tonnes of steel and clad in plywood. Work is to begin shortly on the open-air ranges. Three outdoor ranges will host the Olympic shotgun competitions, which will then be transformed to stage Paralympic archery afterwards. It is estimated that more than 104,000 spectators will watch the competitions during the Games – equating to around 4,000 people every day.

The spectator seating enclosures for the 25-metre and combined ranges are also in place, with work on the finals enclosure due to finish this month.

The enclosures are being clad in about 18,000 square metres of PVC membrane, which gives the structures a unique appearance. Brightly coloured openings will provide natural ventilation and light.

SKY'S THE LIMIT: roof of Woolwich Common structure

The foundations for the venue were created by driving reclaimed gas pipelines into the ground. A steel frame connects the piles together minimising the use of concrete, which can cause subsidence and damage to the earth when the venue is dismantled.

John Armitt, Chairman of the Olympic Delivery Authority said: "The shooting venue will be one of the ODA's last sporting arenas to complete, and the progress made to date is impressive given the scale of the ranges and enclosures. The innovative design contrasts excellently to the historic setting of the Royal Artillery Barracks that spectators will see as they enter the venue."

LOCOG chair Seb Coe added: "Spectators going to see shooting and Paralympic archery events will get to experience the Games in a colourful and modern venue situated in a world-class location that will inspire them as much as the athletes competing next summer."

Cllr John Fahy, Greenwich Council's cabinet member for culture and the Olympics, said: "It is very exciting to see this venue taking shape, set as it is with the historic Royal Artillery Barracks as the backdrop."

Once completed, the venue will be handed over to Games organising committee LOCOG for overlay work. After that it will be handed back to the Ministry of Defence. The enclosures are rented and can be re-used after the Games.

Nursery times

New building a tribute to popular Sue

SORELY MISSED: Sue Laker

"This is a really striking building, and it's great to see how much the children enjoy being here. Parents are clearly very impressed too."

The new purpose-built nursery has a Machine Profile Log construction which is a modern twist on the traditional log cabin. It is the first nursery of its kind in the south-east and also has its own landscaped area and covered outdoor play space.

The building was funded through money secured by Greenwich Council on behalf of the school. The council contributed financially to the landscaping and to security improvements to the school site.

All nursery children and a parent or carer were invited to the event, which included a celebratory picnic in the covered outdoor area. An undoubted highlight was a show by Mr Marvel the magician.

JUMPING FOR JOY: youngsters celebrate the opening of the new building with Mayor of Greenwich Jim Gillman

A POPULAR nursery teacher who died three years ago will be remembered in the best possible way.

Wyborne primary school's new nursery building, which opened last week, is called the Sue Laker Building.

It was officially opened by her family members in the presence of Mayor of Greenwich Jim Gillman, the Mayoress Janet Gillman, local MP Clive Efford, parents and staff.

The building in Footscray Road, Eltham, includes its own computer suite and interactive whiteboard, self-contained showering facilities and fully fitted kitchen.

Headteacher Sheila White said: "Wyborne has a very strong tradition for early years education, and our children are delighted with the new building, which provides them with a superb learning environment both indoors and outdoors."

"Moving the nursery into its own dedicated building has also enabled us to expand and improve facilities for the two reception classes in the main school building, and to create a new music room for the whole school to use."

"The new building is a fitting tribute to Sue Laker, who made a huge impression on the children she taught and on the school community, and who is still sorely missed."

Cllr Jim Gillman said:

MAGIC: the children are enthralled by Mr Marvel the magician

All pregnant women under the age of 18 also qualify, even if they don't receive any benefits or tax credits.

The pilot will run for six months initially, and may be rolled out further if successful.

● For more information about Healthy Start, visit www.healthystart.nhs.uk or call the Healthy Start helpline on 0845 607 6823.

Torch bearers

SCHOOL pupils were among the first to hear the news that Greenwich will be the first London borough to greet the Olympic torch as it ends its tour of the UK next July. DICK TOWNSEND-SMITH joined the celebrations in Greenwich Park, days after fellow pupils enjoyed their own torch relay...

EXCITED children from Meridian Primary School were the first to hear about how the Olympic torch - the legendary symbol of the Games - will arrive in Greenwich next year on the first leg of its relay tour of the London boroughs.

They were chosen to hear the announcement because the Prime Meridian Line runs through their school in Old Woolwich Road.

They were told by the Mayor of Greenwich, Cllr Jim Gillman, and Cllr John Fahy, the council's cabinet member for culture and the Olympics, at a special announcement in Greenwich park on Monday last week.

During the event, every child in the school was handed a personal invitation signed by the Mayor and Lord Coe, Chair of Games organisers LOCOG. It was to invite them along to greet the torch when it arrives at the Meridian Line on July 21 next year, after being carried by torch bearers to every part of the UK after leaving Lands End in May.

The pupils were the first in the borough to be invited to the 2012 London torch relay, and were thrilled by the news.

Lewis Gibbs, seven, said: "I'd like to be able to carry the torch myself, and have all the people cheering." His friend Tyrese Emmanule, also seven, said: "I'm good at running, and I'd like to run with it myself as far as the park gates, but I would wait until I was nine to do it because I'll be more confident by then."

A model of the Olympic torch was made by Tilly Doorey, six, helped by her mum. "It would be ever so exciting to run with the real one," said Tilly. And Oliver Blundy, nine, said: "I don't think I'd like to run with the torch, I'd prefer to watch it go past. What I like best about the Olympics is that it will be watched by so many people all over the world."

After receiving their invitations, the pupils were able to practise their own torch relay, coached by army PT instructor Corporal Kieran Boyd from the Princess of Wales's Royal Regiment, who was invited to the ceremony with Lt. Col. Ed Brockman, the Royal Artillery Station Commander at Woolwich.

Woolwich Barracks is the venue for next year's Olympic and Paralympic shooting events, when Greenwich will be hosting 34 events in nine sports. Greenwich Park will be used for the equestrian events and modern pentathlon, with gymnastics and basketball at the Greenwich Arena at The O2. It will make the borough the largest Olympic and Paralympic venue outside the Olympic Park itself.

Cllr Fahy added: "Greenwich is delighted to be the first London Borough to witness the fantastic spectacle of the Olympic Torch Relay. It will provide a unique chance for Greenwich residents to share in the excitement of the Olympic spirit - to mark the countdown to the start of the 2012 Games.

"It will also be an opportunity to support those courageous torch bearers who have been chosen to run with the Olympic Flame. I would personally like to encourage as many people as possible to be part of this rare occasion and celebrate the cultural events on offer leading up to and during the Games."

In touch with past torches

TEAMS from 13 local schools battled it out when an orienteering quiz took place in Greenwich Park – watched by Olympic and Paralympics mascots Wenlock and Mandeville. The children and their teachers were also thrilled to be able to hold two real Olympic torches – the one from the 1948 London Games and the other from the 1956 Games in Melbourne, Australia. They were brought along by former athlete John Greatrex, who told the children about the torches' history. The teams navigated around the park using maps, and displayed great teamwork using the Olympic values of respect, excellence and friendship in completing the quiz questions along the way. The winning teams included Cardwell school and St Margaret Clitherow who took home a winner's plaque while all the children went home with Big WoW gold medals, t-shirts and certificates. The other schools which took part were Boxgrove, Conway, Discovery, Heronsgate, Horn Park, Invicta, Linton Mead, Middle Park, Montbelle and St Mary Magdalene. The quiz was organised by Greenwich Council and the children used specially-printed maps provided by the council's design team and funded by Transport for London. The quiz was part of celebrations to mark the end of the Big WoW walking relay which saw nearly 6,000 pupils from 200 London schools take part in a walking relay carrying the two torches around the capital. The walking relay, which started October 3 was designed to encourage primary school children to walk to school and to make walking part of their everyday lives. Meanwhile, all schools in the borough have been invited to take part in the London-wide Big WoW competition, organised by Transport for London (TfL). It involves young people taking a walk around their local area and identifying landmarks and places of interest, and then writing a story about the things they like best. The winners will be announced before Christmas.

It's easy Nepalese

VEGETARIAN food is often labelled as boring and tasteless. But nothing could have been further from the truth with the meat-free starter at Nepalese restaurant Panas. Chick peas combined with potatoes, onions and fresh herbs to create a zingy and light entrée. Presentation was beautiful – the high-build and precise construction complete with arty swirl of sauce that wouldn't have been out of place in a Michelin-starred eatery. Nepalese cuisine differs from Indian food in that the spices are more subtle and dishes are less oily. Certainly at Panas there was a freshness to the food which is sometimes lacking in run-of-the-mill Indians. There was also the hint of fusion between the spice and a sweet-and-sour note borrowed from Oriental cuisine. Tamarind was a prominent flavour, glazing the chili king prawn dish which saw two huge crustations sit atop a crunchy green pepper. Presentation was exquisite. The young head chef at the Lee High Road restaurant looks to have added creativity and flare to the Nepalese standards here. Choyola chicken came with a chef's recommendation on the menu, and didn't disappoint. No heavy sauces to swamp the dish, just lightly barbecued chicken breast on a salad and mustard dressing. The flavours were unusual – sesame oil again hinted at China, and the snappy spring onion and a generous helping of leaves made this a light lunch dish rather than a heavy rib-sticker. More traditional was the lamb Khutta. The meat virtually fell off the fork it was so tender.

Mushrooms and peas added to the sauce which had more in common with the standard Indian dishes that Panas also serves up. But the real strength and uniqueness of this fine dining restaurant is in its vibrant Nepalese menu.

Panas has two restaurants – one at 318 Lee High Road and another at 133 Lavender Hill, Battersea. Book on 020 8852 9891 or 020 8297 8794 or go online at www.thepanas.co.uk

Don't waste it recycle it

We need more good quality material to increase our targets so if you have not yet joined our recycling scheme then telephone the Council's Contact Centre on 020 8921 4661 to order your free blue top wheelie bin.

The Council has made recycling easy for residents; you can recycle 5 different materials in one blue top bin, but please follow our recycling advice to ensure that we can use all of the material that you place in the bin.

Make sure the material is useable by ensuring it is clean as we cannot use any material that has food waste on it. It is important that every member of your household is aware of what can go in the blue top bin.

Recycling saves money

As well as being good for the environment recycling saves money. Last year Greenwich residents helped Londoners save £30m by recycling.

Woolwich Market Traders Are Recycling

Stallholders in Woolwich Market have been working closely with the Council and have successfully set up a Green Blue Black system for unwanted waste generated at the market.

plastic bottles greatly reducing the amount of waste in the black non recycling bins.

Market traders have also been given green top bins for their left over fruit and vegetables.

Two new items can be placed in your blue top bin.

We are pleased to announce that we can now accept waxed food and drinks cartons and paperback books in our kerbside collection service.

Blue recycling bins are now in place for cardboard, paper, cans, glass and

Every little helps!

If you are unsure then keep it simple with the basic materials even paper and glass will help us to increase our recycling targets and save money.

Don't forget to put your blue top bin (or clear recycling bag if you are unable to have a bin) outside your property from 6.00 am on collection day. Bins should never be left on the pavement the night before or after collection day as they can cause disruption for residents, especially if they use wheelchairs or buggies.

Blue top bins are collected in the morning so make sure that all cardboard boxes are folded and placed next to your bin so they are taken by the recycling collection team.

If you have any questions or wish to discuss our recycling service in more detail then telephone the Council's Contact Centre on 020 8921 4661 to request a call or visit from one of our Waste Advisors who are always happy to help.

PLEASE
NO FOOD WASTE
NO NAPPIES
NO BLACK BAGS

One of the biggest problems we face is with contaminated material so if you are not sure please put it in your black top bin, don't waste the material you have already sorted.

Recycling material should not be placed in black bags as it makes it difficult for collection crews to check that it contains the correct material. We will send you clear recycling bags free of charge if you ring the Contact Centre. You can place the material loose in your blue top bin if you prefer not to use a bag.

Greenwich Council's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 262

How the lettings policy works

Housing applicants are placed within 'Bands' according to the Council's policy for letting homes. Your band information is on the letter that the Council sent you when you registered, or when your circumstances changed.

Property adverts say which band can apply and any other criteria. When all the bids are received, the property is then offered to:

For properties advertised for band A and band B - the applicant who has had this priority status for the longest time.
For properties advertised for band C applicants - the applicant who has been registered on the Council's list for the longest time.

Band

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the council must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

1 Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, get an application form by phoning the Access and Allocations Section on 020 8921 2941. Or pick up a form from any neighbourhood office.

2 Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Council about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

3 Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.greenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free in either your neighbourhood housing office, library or UK Online centre.

4 Apply in one of two ways

- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Council's website

Borough's pride

London FA hands over four awards to Greenwich

by Dan Sales

IT was a stellar night for Greenwich at the London FA's annual awards ceremony as local clubs and residents took home four of the coveted awards.

Regular winners Long Lane JFC were hailed the Community Club of the Year for the fifth time in eight years and Junior Reds FC were awarded the development club of the year for the first time.

There were also individual awards for Mick Northwood, who won the Outstanding Contribution to Female Football award, and to Ella Stratham, who won the Young Volunteer of the Year award for her work on the Young Leader scheme.

FA chairman David Bernstein visited Long Lane in Dursley Road, Kidbrooke, on Saturday, November 5. He said: "The work done at grass roots in this country by people like Mick Northwood is absolutely fantastic. It's valuable work both for football and society as a whole and I commend the effort."

Speaking of Ella and other volunteers, he added: "It's absolutely crucial. With 600,000 volunteers working throughout the country, it speaks for itself. It's a huge army and without that sort of volunteering the whole thing would probably disintegrate, it wouldn't exist."

"You've got to give tremendous credit to the whole of the national game right the way through to the volunteer work that's done. It's a really important part of English society."

The Development Club of the Year award is an acknowledgement of the hard work that Junior Reds FC have done over the last five years.

The club has a close link with Charlton Athletic and Mr Bernstein said: "One of the reasons that I am in Greenwich is because of the tremendous community work that Charlton do. They're famed for it."

David James, the London FA's senior development officer, said: "Junior Reds are another fantastic club in the area. They have increased the number of clubs they operate every year for the last five years. We're looking to present the award to them on the pitch at Charlton."

Mr James added: "For a long time Greenwich has been one of our most proactive boroughs. The facilities here are great. Not surprisingly, Long Lane will be the official training ground for the football teams in next year's Olympics."

Mick Northwood told GT: "We've been lucky in getting all the grants we've got, obviously, but we've given plenty back as well."

Cllr John Fahy, the council's cabinet member for culture and the Olympics, said: "Long Lane have once again done us proud. It's great to see Junior Reds making such progress, while volunteers in Ella's class are vital for sporting success and participation in the borough."

'JJ' among the medals

SABRE fencer Jonathan "JJ" Webb has his sights set on the junior world championships in Moscow next year after he finished ninth out of 127 competitors from 11 countries in an Under 17 tournament in France, writes Dan Sales.

The 15-year-old New Eltham schoolboy also helped the GB A team to a team silver medal.

His coach, Rob Partridge, is just as confident. He said: "I'm very happy with his progress, it's good to see a nice maturity coming through him."

Sometimes it looks like he's 15 years old, but out in France there was a good presence on the piste."

JJ will probably keep his position as the UK's No. 1 cadet despite finishing sixth in a tournament at Eltham College on November 5. He said: Today was really not the best result at all. I'll probably still be number one, but I've got to be looking to win these.

"My goal next year is to qualify for the Europeans and worlds. Further on I'll try and qualify for the senior national team."

His coach reckons JJ can go to the very top. Rob Partridge said: "He's got a very good work ethic. He's always first one in and last one out, which for a coach is brilliant. You're not trying to motivate him, he motivates you."
